Other Departments have only local Committees at specific points.

2. The most important of the Departmental Committees is that in Cuzco, where the PCP claims a membership of approximately 8000. Within the Department the greatest strength is in the Provinces of Cuzco, La Convencion, Canchis, Espinar, and Paucartambo. In addition to the Departmental Secretary, Abelardo Salazar, the most important member is Cesar Nieto, who has been called to Lima by the Political Commission of the PCP to take charge of the Party newspaper Luz when the latter becomes a daily, instead of a weekly, in June.
3. The Departmental Committee of Lima has headquarters at the same location as the Central Committee. The Party claims a strength of approximately 5000 in this Department.
4. The structure of the PCP below the Departmental Committees consists of Provincial Committees and Local Committees. The latter two groups actually control the party cells, or "Celulas de Barrios."
